Downloader: This software is the usual go to for anyone looking to save a video from YouTube to their computer. It works just like the Video Downloader(xmlbar) and is free to download and use.

Note that YouTube Downloader does not provide much in the way of extras, but it does support the usual video types (MP4, MP3 and FLV).

HDVideo Downloader: HDVideo Downloader works in the same way as Video Downloader, which is to say that you can either insert a URL link to a video, or you can search for videos using a search engine. The website is dedicated to "The Web's best", so there's no surprise that HDVideo Downloader has excellent video quality, although it can still only save MP4, MP3 and FLV. YDL: "YDL is the ideal tool for people who want to download videos from YouTube or other video sharing sites. YDL searches all the files in a selected folder and compares them to the URLs stored in the YDL database. A list of videos will be generated and the user will be able to select the ones he or she wants to download. You can also select the video quality. Then the program will immediately download the files to your specified folder and save them in a specified format. The output file names are automatically generated based on the file URLs. It also supports batch downloading of files from all the URLs in the selected folder. You can set the file size limit for the downloaded file. If a file is larger than the specified size, it will automatically be divided into several files. The user can specify a separate folder to save all the videos downloaded."
